BANGOR — An estimated $7,500 in fire damage was caused when four buildings caught fire at the rear of the Gap View Inn off 1191 on the property of Bronislaw E. Hul of Plainfield Twp. yesterday at 12:45 p.m.

The blaze in a barn, two garages and corn crib was well under way when Plainfield Twp. Volunteer fire fighters arrived on the scene.

Stewart Marsh, Plainfield Twp. fire chief, called on Bushkill Twp., Stockertown and Nazareth fire companies for assistance.

The cause of the fire has not been determined. Chief Marsh is continuing his investigation.

Riot Erupts Near Chicago

DIXMOOR, Ill. (AP) — Cook County sheriff's police said a riot is out of control in Dixmoor, a suburb south of Chicago, Sunday night.

L. C. Mortrud, administrator at Ingalls Memorial Hospital in the nearby town of Harvey, told the Associated Press they have received "25 injured, maybe more." All the injured are white persons, he said.

Sheriff's police said they did not immediately know the nature of the riot.

Student Booked On 4 Murders

CHULA VISTA, Calif. (AP) — An 18-year-old divinity student was booked on suspicion of murder Sunday after police said he told them of beating his mother, father, brother and sister to death.

Raymond Goedecke, student at Concordia College in Oakland, Calif., first told officers he discovered the bodies when he returned home Saturday morning from a Lutheran mountain camp at Valley Center near Palomar Mountain in San Diego County.

Fires Blacken Nevada Range

ELKO, Nev. (AP) — More than 1,000 men were mobilized Sunday to battle massive fires which blackened an estimated 113,000 acres of range and forest land in northern and central Nevada.

A pilot, flying fire fighters to the scene, was killed when his single-engine plane crashed 20 miles north of Elko, in north-eastern Nevada. Clay Farnsworth, the pilot, was returning to Boise, Idaho, when his Cessna 182 went down and burned.

Two ranchers were seriously burned trying to halt one of the blazes.

Demo Chief Knocks Barry

EMPORIUM, Pa. (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, the Republican presidential candidate was accused Saturday by Otis B. Morse of attempting to "enslave the nation through extremism and hate."

Morse, the Democratic state chairman, told a meeting of party leaders here:

"We Democrats are fighting the reincarnation of the old Tories who believe that benefiting the few guarantees a filtering down of largesse to the many."

Stratton Scores RFK 'Blitzkrieg'

NEW YORK (AP) — Rep. Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y., formally announced his candidacy Sunday for New York's Democratic senatorial nomination, amid more predictions that Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy will also run and will win the nomination.

Stratton, speaking on the WCRB television program "Newsmakers," accused Kennedy supporters of waging a "newspaper blitzkrieg" and "implying certain things that are not true — such as the support of President Johnson."

Detroit Papers Still Striking

DETROIT (AP) — What in the world is going on?

That's a question some 1.6 million Detroiters are asking each other these days. Their regular daily newspapers have been shut down by a strike for 34 days.

Neither the Detroit Newspaper Publishers Association nor the striking pressmen or plate handlers have given any indication there may be a settlement soon.

Khanh Takes Over Viet Presidency

Promises To Crush Opposition Parties

CAP ST. JACQUES, Viet Nam (AP) — Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh took over the presidency of South Viet Nam on Sunday but supreme powers were placed in the hands of a 62-member Revolutionary Council.

Khanh promulgated a new constitution and vowed to crush opposition political parties.

Moving up from premier, Khanh replaced Maj. Gen. Duong Van Minh who had held the presidency only as a figurehead chief of state. The new powers given to Khanh restored a powerful presidential system similar to that which was abolished with the overthrow of the Ngo Dinh Diem regime in November.

Must Gain Approval
Khanh's acts as president must meet with the approval of the Revolutionary Council, however.

This provision in the new constitution appeared to be a setback for Khanh. An original draft of the constitution granted full powers to Khanh in a national emergency.

Khanh, elected president after consultations with U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor and other American officials, said he would appoint a "war cabinet" within a month. Also to be named are a vice president, a provisional national assembly and a judiciary.

Wearing camouflaged battle dress, Khanh told a news conference that only political parties loyal to the government and its fight against Viet Cong Communist guerrillas would be encouraged.

He said that only for the present would the National Assembly and judiciary be appointed. With a return to peace in Viet Nam, he said, there will be popular elections. The few civilians in the old government were purged.

In a three-hour secret session, military officers who made up the military hierarchy since Khanh's Jan. 30 takeover gave Khan 50 of 58 votes for the presidency.

Five votes went to Lt. Gen. Tran Tien Khiem, defense minister in the old Cabinet and one of the favorites of dissidents in the ruling junta.

Gen. Minh got one vote, as did Maj. Gen. To Cao Tri. One ballot was declared invalid.

Before the council meeting, a source close to Khanh said Khanh would be named vice president. The fact that no one was picked for the post at the session was taken as a sign that Khanh still has opposition inside the junta.

About 60 newsmen were called in after a closed meeting to witness the formal vote for presidency. Officers wrote down their choices while sitting in tight rows where neighbors could easily see how they voted.

Assumes Power
In the draft of the new constitution which was translated from a Vietnamese charter was a provision that permitted the president during a national emergency to "make all decisions and take all appropriate measures" with responsibility only to consult with the president of the provisional National Assembly and to report to the military Revolutionary Council.

Before going to the airport, drummer Boris Midney, 27, and bassist Igor Berezhnitski, 27, told Japanese officials they did not want to return to the Soviet Union, did not want to talk to Soviet Embassy officials here, and were making the decision to fly to West Germany of their own free will.

Six carloads of Japanese police escorted the two to the airport. The two had been members of a musical troupe touring Japan. At the airport, they issued a jointly signed statement which said they were defecting because of lack of freedom for the arts in the Soviet Union and had made their decision "a long time ago."

Statement
The statement, as translated by police:

"We decided of our own free will to leave the Soviet Union and to ask the help of the United States government. We are musicians and we want to be free in continuing our work in music."

In the Soviet Union, all forms of art are guided politically. We constantly receive orders as to what we should do and what we should say. We have been robbed of our initiative as musicians and our individuality has been crushed, but we like our work and do not consider changing it. We are professional musicians and music is the most important thing in our lives.

The liberals, who started their talk last Friday, were reported to have fewer than 10 willing to speak. Leadership lieutenants figured they might run out of speeches by Wednesday, with a possibility of a vote on the issue the next day.

The liberals have contended that a proposal by Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, concurred in by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, would involve an unconstitutional invasion of the authority of the judiciary.

Sens. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., came up with a compromise Sunday they said in a statement they will present as "an alternative to the Dirksen-Mansfield amendment, which should solve the dilemma in which the Senate now finds itself."

It proposed to record "the sense of Congress" that the courts give "adequate time" for states to appoint their legislators on a constitutional basis and for action on a constitutional amendment covering the question.

Dirksen immediately dismissed this as meaningless because it would be only advisory and not mandatory.

Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., an opponent of the Dirksen-Mansfield rider, said he finds it unsatisfactory because it is vague about the time that

Musicians Defect To West

TOKYO (AP) — "It is impossible to go on living in Russia only on the promise that things will be better some time."

With these words, two Russian musicians who defected Saturday and sought asylum in the U.S. Embassy here, boarded a plane which will make stops at Anchorage, Alaska, and Copenhagen. Japanese police at the airport said the two had U.S. passports and were going to West Germany.

No Confirmation
U.S. Embassy officials would neither confirm nor deny that the Russians had been given U.S. passports. Earlier, however, a U.S. Embassy source emphasized that the two had not been granted asylum.

Informed sources said that once the two were in West Germany they could either change their minds and return to the Soviet Union or enter a refugee camp and apply for admission to the United States or some other country of their choice.

Death Marks Deep South Weekend Racial Violence

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Racial violence flared in the South over the weekend, leaving one dead, several persons injured and scores of burning crosses dotted across the countryside.

A rash of incidents were reported in Jackson, Miss., on Saturday night, while other major flareups occurred at Greenwood, Miss., and Albany, Ga. Most of the cross-burnings were in Louisiana and Mississippi.

Police at Jackson arrested two young white men for shooting a Negro. The victim, Willie Earl Guyne, 18, was not seriously wounded. Police charged Markus Perkins and D.J. Hawkins, both in their 20s, with shooting with intent after officers said they shot Guyne in the thigh with a .22-caliber pistol.

Youth Beaten
About the same time, Philip Hocker, 19, a white civil rights worker and student at Princeton University, was beaten by a youth with a baseball bat at a busy intersection. Hocker of Corning, N.Y., was admitted to a local hospital.

A cross was burned at the intersection after the attack and five other cross-burnings were reported in the Mississippi capital.

In an earlier incident, five workers for the Council of Federated Organizations—COFO—reported that eight or 10 shots were fired at their car on a Jackson street. Police said three bullets were recovered from the car.

At Greenwood, Silas McGhee, 20, a Negro civil rights worker, was wounded in the head by a pistol bullet, and admitted to a Greenwood hospital.

Shot In Car
The Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee—SNCC, spearheading a Negro voter-registration drive in Mississippi's delta area, said McGhee was shot as he sat in a car in front of a Greenwood cafe. Witnesses said the bullet came from a passing station wagon occupied by two white men.

At Albany, one person was injured and two arrested in a brick-and-bottle-throwing spree by Negroes after police fatally shot a Negro man. Several stores in the Harlem section were damaged, but police said the damage was not extensive.

Police Chief Laurie Pritchett said the slain Negro, William Jones, 30, was shot after he fired at several Negroes and appeared to be drawing a gun on a policeman. The SNCC sent a letter to Pritchett calling for an investigation.

Crosses Burn
Scores of fiery crosses, symbol of the Ku Klux Klan, were touched off with almost military precision at 10 p.m. Saturday across Louisiana. Dozens were burned in the capital city of Baton Rouge, while others were reported in Monroe, Lake Charles, Alexandria and many smaller towns. Many were planted on school grounds.

Police and the FBI were investigating an explosion which blew windows out of a Negro grocery store and nearby residences in McComb, Miss. No one was injured. It was the fifth racial bombing in McComb in recent months.

Calls Barry Radical
"But I think his approach is a radical one in that it involves a rather violent departure, really, from the traditional approach to politics at the presidential level," McCarthy said.

In another attack on the GOP nominee, Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., said the Republicans are going to make "the greatest retreat since Waterloo" from public positions Goldwater has taken on numerous issues.

Magnuson, interviewed on the CBS radio and television program "Face the Nation," said Goldwater has stated in the past he opposes federal aid to education, wants a national right-to-work law and thinks Social Security should be voluntary.

Magnuson said the Republicans will now try to say Goldwater didn't mean it.

But Magnuson said he thinks the Arizona senator does mean it when he says such things and claimed the Republican nominal would move the nation backward.

Humphrey said in a speech prepared for the California State Democratic Convention in Sacramento he understands the Republicans have "worked up a real dandy campaign slogan: 'I'd rather be far-right than president.'"

New Tunes?
"Is it any wonder," he asked, "that Republicans like Tommy Kuchel, Nelson Rockefeller, Ken Keating and Joe Javits are all alone these days singing their own campaign song — 'Down by the old mainstem?'"

Humphrey said the administration headed by the late John F. Kennedy and now by Johnson has made "a record" progress and prosperity "he thinks the voters are going to miss in November by giving Johnson an elective term."

Chief U.N. Mediator Suffers Mild Stroke

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Greek Cypriots greeted joyfully Sunday a Soviet offer to help in the event of an invasion of Cyprus and President Makarios was under pressure to fly to Moscow immediately to start negotiations.

Makarios, a Greek Orthodox archbishop, is still bitterly opposed to Western mediation efforts to solve the eight-month-old crisis. U.N. mediation efforts were dealt a blow: In Geneva, the chief U.N. mediator, Sakari S. Tuomioja of Finland, suffered a mild stroke and was rushed to a hospital just before his scheduled departure for talks in Greece, Turkey and Cyprus.

Premier Khrushchev warned Turkey that any further attacks on Cyprus might "boomerang." Tass quoted him as telling an audience in the central Asian city of Frunza that "imperialist plotters" had fanned up the conflict between Greek and Turkish Cypriots in order to reoccupy the island.

He also charged that the Turkish air strikes earlier this month were inspired by Washington and London. The Soviet leader called for Britain to withdraw its troops from Cyprus, but made no mention of the U.N. peacekeeping force of which the Britons form a part.

He added that he welcomed Soviet efforts "to bring about a peaceful settlement of the Cyprus problem."

In Ankara, the Turkish government had no comment.

At about the same time as the Soviet offer of aid was being given to the Makarios government, the Soviet ambassador in Nicosia, Pavel Ermoshin, drove through the barricades for a conference with the Turkish Cypriot leader, Fazil Kuchuk. A spokesman would give no details of the talks but said that Kuchuk appeared satisfied afterward.

Cease-Fire Effective
A cease-fire imposed by the United Nations after the violent outbreak of fighting early this month has now been in effect a week with relative success, with only minor incidents reported by U.N. headquarters in Nicosia.

The Greek Cypriot newspaper Eleftheria reported that Foreign Minister Spyros Kyprianou will fly to Moscow on Friday for negotiations with the Soviet government on a military aid agreement. Several other papers, however, made editorial demands that President Makarios himself should travel to Moscow.

Greek Cypriot newspapers hailed the Soviet aid offer that came from Moscow on Saturday.

"Joyful news has come," said the anti-Makarios right-wing newspaper Mahi.

One weekly paper suggested Makarios broaden his Cabinet to bring in Communists.

The key to the Soviet offer appeared to be in the final paragraph of the Kremlin statement: "If a foreign armed invasion of the territory of the Republic of Cyprus to defend her freedom and independence from foreign invasion and is prepared to begin negotiations on this matter immediately."

Although the Greek Cypriot official response to the Soviet government has as yet made no offer, officials privately interpreted it, perhaps optimistically, as a full offer of arms aid and material support in the battle for self-determination, which would in effect mean union with Greece.

Turks Calm
While Greek Cypriots were gleeful, Turkish Cypriots gave the appearance of taking the Soviet message calmly. From the headquarters of the Turkish sector of the divided capital city, a Turkish Cypriot spokesman said: "We are inclined to believe that Russia will not intervene."

He added that he welcomed Soviet efforts "to bring about a peaceful settlement of the Cyprus problem."

Pa. Leads In Rehabilitation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pennsylvania led the state federal vocational rehabilitation program to an all-time high in the fiscal year ending last June 30. The program rehabilitated nearly 120,000 men and women.

In the one-year period, the total was 119,708, a nine per cent increase over the previous fiscal year figure of 110,138.

Pennsylvania contributed 11,581 to the 1963-64 total, an increase of 794 over 1962-63. New York was second this past year with 8,103; Georgia was third with 6,803; and North Carolina fourth with 6,737. Each of these total were state records.

In number rehabilitated per 100,000 population, West Virginia ranked first with 7.8, as compared with the national average of 6.3. Rhode Island was second with 1.77; Georgia third with 1.64.

Former Inmates Charged In Death

WEST CHESTER, Pa. (AP) — Two former inmates at the Emoryville State Hospital have been charged with murder in the death of a 68-year-old patient.

The men, Joseph N. Phillips, 236, and Arlie T. Jackson, 27, both of Chester, were held without bail Thursday by Justice of the Peace Meredith Cooper.

William Roulen, formerly of West Chester, was injured May 20 and died at the hospital June 8. A coroner said Roulen suffered a punctured lung, possibly because of a broken rib.

State police, who arrested the two men in Chester Thursday, said they admitted punching the victim.

Aug. 23 Is Library Day

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Scranton Friday designated Aug. 23 as John F. Kennedy Memorial Library Fund Day in Pennsylvania with a professional football exhibition between the Philadelphia Eagles and Detroit Lions the top activity.

Gov. Scranton signed a proclamation and noted that the Eagles' management will turn over one-third of the proceeds from the game to the memorial fund.

Morse Wants Reapportionment

HARRISBURG (AP) — Ollis B. Morse, Democratic state chairman, Friday opposed any congressional moves to delay legislative reapportionment as mandated by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Morse asked Pennsylvania Democrats in Congress to join him by opposing two pieces of legislation now before the House and Senate.

The House Rules Committee Thursday sent to the floor legislation proposed by Rep. William Tuck, D-Va., which would bar all federal courts from ruling on the make-up of state legislatures.

In the Senate, Minority Leader Everett Dirksen, R-Ill., has advanced a proposal to delay mandated reapportionment at least until 1966.

2 Charged As White Slavers

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — FBI agents arrested two Lackawanna County men Friday on federal warrants charging them with violations of the white slave traffic act. A warrant was issued for a third man.

Taken into custody were Joseph P. Canzanarite, 45, of Archbald, and Michael J. Mancuso, 34, of Carlsdale.

A warrant for the arrest of Frank Rapack, 38, of Scranton, was filed as a detainer with the warden at Lackawanna County jail, where Rapack currently is being held on a variety of charges stemming from the vic-ring investigation.

City League Asks Drafters

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Pennsylvania League of Cities asked Gov. Scranton Friday to appoint a non-partisan committee to draft a reapportionment plan for the General Assembly.

The league made public a resolution it adopted at its annual convention this week in Philadelphia urging a plan to be drawn which would guarantee each citizen of the state equal representation in the legislature.

Johnson-Goldwater Rights Stands Always Divergent

By Congressional Quarterly
WASHINGTON — The civil rights records of President Johnson and Republican Presidential nominee Barry Goldwater have moved in diametrically opposing directions during their public careers.

Johnson's Southern Roots
A Congressional Quarterly review shows that President Johnson began his Congressional career in 1937 as a typical Southerner, voting against anti-lynching bills, against outlawing the poll tax, against fair employment practices (FEPC) laws and against modifying the Senate cloture rule to break filibusters.

In fact, it was not until 1957 that Johnson cast a single vote that could be considered friendly to the civil rights cause. But in that year, and again in 1960, he furnished the leadership essential to pass the first civil rights laws since Reconstruction.

Nominated as Vice Presidential candidate in 1960, Johnson backed that year's Democratic platform with its sweeping civil rights proposals. As President he gave strong backing to the bipartisan Civil Rights Act of 1964, the most comprehensive rights bill of American history.

the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People.

But Goldwater's strong penchant for limited constitutional government has led him — though he still backs integration on the local level — to support most restrictive amendments to the 1957 and 1960 bills and to vote against the 1964 Civil Rights Act. He has waged his campaign toward the Presidency with a clear appeal to the South and has branded sections of the 1964 rights bill as unconstitutional and steps toward a "police state."

Johnson's Early Record
Throughout his first 20 years in Congress — 1937 to 1956 — Johnson voted 100 per cent of the time in adherence with the Southern position on civil rights matters.

In 1937, and again in 1940, he voted against a federal anti-lynching law. In 1942, and again in 1943, 1945, 1947 and 1950, he voted against proposals to outlaw the poll tax by federal statute. In 1946 and 1950 he voted against bringing an FEPC bill to the floor. On numerous occasions he voted against anti-discrimination riders to various bills. In 1950 he cast two votes to restrict the effect of President Truman's executive order desegregating the armed forces. He consistently opposed loosening Senate cloture rules.

Johnson's public statements matched his voting record. At an Austin, Texas, political rally, May 22, 1948, he said — in words strongly reminiscent of Goldwater in 1964 — "This civil rights program, about which you have heard so much, is a farce and a sham — an effort to get up a police state in the guise of liberty."

In a Senate speech, March 9, 1949, Johnson said that proposed FEPC legislation "would necessitate a system of federal police officers as we have never before seen." He concluded: "We in the Senate, should learn the facts of life. We cannot legislate love."

Johnson's Senate Leadership
In January 1953, Johnson became Democratic Leader in the Senate, a position in which he would eventually decide to break with the Southern stand.

As late as 1955 he declared: "The segregation issue 'is one that has been settled in a number of different forms by the courts and executive agencies. Congress is no longer a meaningful forum for such debate.'"

But pressures for civil rights legislation grew. When the Eisenhower Administration in 1957 pressed for a rights law, Johnson at first voted to send the civil rights bill to the Judiciary Committee. But when that measure to the hostile Judiciary failed, he cast the first pro-civil rights vote of his career in support of a motion to begin consideration of the bill.

Johnson subsequently voted for the two principal weakening amendments to the 1957 Civil Rights Act. But he did vote for it on final passage and was credited with aid in lining up the required votes.

In 1959, Johnson introduced the first civil rights bill of his career. It contained an anti-bombing provision, extended the life of the Civil Rights Commission, granted subpoena powers to the Justice Department in voting investigations and called for establishment of a Federal Community Relations Service to assist in the conciliation of integration disputes.

This later feature, new in Johnson's bill, was eventually to become law as part of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

Also in 1959, Johnson opposed a complete change of the cloture rule but won Senate approval of his own compromise proposal making it slightly easier to invoke cloture to break

In 1960, as in 1957, Johnson played a key role in winning Senate passage of a civil rights bill. Johnson, Senate Minority Leader Everett McKinley Dirksen (R-Ill.) and other Congressional leaders agreed on enough weakening amendments to persuade the Southerners not to filibuster to the bitter end. Johnson's liberal opponents argued he had bargained away too much, but his defenders noted that without his legislative skill and "sense of the possible," there would probably have been no bill at all.

Toward The White House
Seeking the 1960 Democratic Presidential nomination, Johnson found his Southern roots still a major embarrassment. To the usual candidate's plea for abandonment of bigotry against race, religion or color, he invariably added that against "section." Early in 1960, Johnson joined the Western Democratic Senators' caucus.

After his selection by John F. Kennedy to be the 1960 Democratic Vice Presidential candidate — a choice that caused murmurs of discontent in Northern liberal circles — Johnson appeared before a group of Democratic Negro leaders to say: "From the bottom of my heart, I have done my level best to make progress in the field of civil rights, though there have election, the victorious white candidates — two of them incumbents — received from 1,289 to 1,315 votes.

In no instance did their Negro opponents get as many as 200.

Why?
The Rev. Mr. Buford, who as vice president of the Tuskegee Civil Association — TCA — has long fought to get his people registered as voters, says the Macon County Democratic Club, closely aligned with the TCA, "decided some time ago that we would try to get only two Negroes on the council."

Only 2 Candidates
The Democratic club put up only two candidates, the Rev. Mr. Buford and Smith, but a newly organized rival group, the Nonpartisan Voters League, ran candidates in all five council races. A couple of independents also ran.

Most of the Negro voters marked their ballots for the Rev. Mr. Buford and Smith for the two council seats they sought and for the white candidates in one other three races.

Explaining the decision by members of his group to put up only two Negro candidates, the Rev. Mr. Buford, 46, said, "We felt like we have to have someone on the council with previous experience."

Besides, he continued, if the Negroes who have asked for a chance to take part in an integrated society tried to elect an all-Negro council, "we would be guilty of perpetuating the very thing we have been criticizing."

Active Rightist
The Rev. Mr. Buford, a native of Pulaski, Va., and pastor of the Butter Chapel African Methodist Episcopal Zion church, has been active in civil rights affairs since the famed Tuskegee gerrymandering fight. The legislature in 1957 changed the city boundaries to leave virtually all of the registered Negro voters out of the city limits.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled the law unconstitutional.

been problems in the Senate and at home at times."

As Vice President, Johnson headed the President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunities. He made some Senate rulings, as Vice President, that displeased civil rights advocates, but as the 1963 civil rights crisis deepened, he took an increasingly strong stand in favor of new civil rights legislation.

Thus the stage was set, when Johnson became President, for him to declare in his first message to Congress that "no memorial oration or eulogy could more effectively honor President Kennedy than the earliest possible passage of the Civil Rights bill for which he fought so long. We have talked long enough in this country about equal rights . . . It is time now to write the next chapter — and to write it in the books of law."

Though few details of overt White House pressure on Congress came to light, it was apparent that President Johnson had thrown the full weight of his office behind the drive to pass the comprehensive Civil Rights Act of 1964. Even before its passage, he had begun consultations with Southern business and political leaders in an effort to secure voluntary compliance with the requirements of the legislation.

Science Shrinks Piles
New Way Without Surgery
Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place. Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—discovery of a world-famous research institute. This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation H®. At all drug counters.

The Pennsylvania Story

Barry Bible Coming

By Mason Denison

HARRISBURG — Barry's book and the block-bustin' GOP plan ought to hearten the doom-dodging legislative candidates who seem ready to throw in the towel before the main bout.

True, the donkey-riders, as of now, are jubilant over the prospects of a clear track to the legislative padlock on the coattails of LBJ.

Immediately after San Francisco there were those who wouldn't give a tarnished Scranton button for the chances of a Republican legislature in 1965.

Now in an apparent effort to soften the "extremism" impact the Barry Goldwater strategists hit on the idea of a sort of campaign bible (small b) called "Where I Stand." So Barry wrote a book.

Carrying the by-line of his nubs himself, this book is scheduled to come off the presses (of the well-known house of McGraw-Hill) on September 8.

This week, in advance of publication, it will be condensed into a series of installments for some newspapers.

Just how many GOPoliticos will swear by this bible — or at it remains to be seen.

The Hershey harmony hodge-podge of last week, where the big-wigs buttered each other between meals, might have been viewed as a bid to strengthen Pennsylvania support for Barry. Or was it held in Chocolate Town for the convenience of the of the Gettysburg Eisenhower. In any event it offered like a short trip to the summit.

Hugh Scott, who plans to mount his own campaign for re-election to the U.S. Senate, stayed away, causing another ripple of speculation.

While Barry batted the breeze on the Hershey hilltop with governors and gubernatorial hopefuls from all over the country, the GOP state committee in Harrisburg was planning to stir up precinct workers in Pennsylvania.

In every election, as the old pros know, the house-to-house canvass starting when the polls open and continuing throughout the day, is what really counts. This is known as getting out the vote.

It's a shame, but only a tiny percentage of the population would otherwise "bother" to vote.

The others wait for the party workers to show up with a good car — and a baby sitter to watch the kids. There are even a few who expect the worker to take them to the nearest club (saloons being closed) on the way home.

This year Craig Truax, who calls the organizational shots as state chairman, is working on a "block system" designed to make one block leader responsible for 25 residences. This guy, with a check list, if he's a good worker, will

Series Of Accidents Mar Poconos Weekend

STROUDSBURG — Area and State Police investigated a series of accidents over the weekend. One mishap hospitalized two area residents in the General Hospital of Lancaster, Pa., on Saturday.

According to State Police at Lancaster, Roberta Lee, 36, of Stroudsburg, RD 5, who was a passenger in a vehicle driven by Theodore L. Stevens, 31, of East Stroudsburg, RD 2, suffered neck and nose injuries received in a two car crash on Rt. 30 Saturday at 4 a.m.

Stevens was traveling west on Rt. 30 when a car driven by John H. Leaman, 23, of Lancaster collided with the rear of Stevens vehicle. A passenger, in Leaman's vehicle, Carolyn Neuer, 30, of Lancaster was also hospitalized for cuts on the forehead and a fractured right arm, police said.

A total of $2500 damage was estimated to the vehicles. Leaman will be charged with reckless driving, police said.

Horse-Buggy Mishap
Also under investigation by State Police at Lancaster was a horse and buggy accident which involved a motorcycle at East Brook Rd., in Lancaster, Friday at 8:20 p.m.

The motorcycle, driven by Donald Halderman, 19, of Kinzer, Pa., was traveling on East Brook Rd. when the buggy driven by Aaron K. Fisher of Stroudsburg, RD 1, attempted to pull out of a driveway and the collision occurred.

Halderman told police he would see his family physician for treatment.

About $50 damage was estimated to the motorcycle and $150 to the buggy, police said.

Two-Car Crash
State Police at Stroudsburg investigated a two car crash in front of the Pocono Twp. School in Tannersville Saturday at 9:30 p.m.

According to Stroudsburg State Police, Henry Johnson, 62, of Scot Run was traveling south on Alternate Rt. 611 when he collided with a vehicle which was reportedly stopped and attempting to make a left turn onto Rt. 715. The car making the turn was driven by Charles K. Loring, 36, of Moscow, Pa.

About $300 damage to the Johnson truck was estimated and about $200 to the Loring vehicle.

Loring was allegedly close to being arrested for assault and battery because of his profane language and actions at the scene.

Two Girls Hurt
Two girls were reportedly hurt in a one car mishap on Rt. 940 and a private road leading to Split Rock Lodge Saturday at 1:15 p.m.

According to police, the driver lost control on the car and skidded over an embankment. Patricia Nimal and her sister, Christine were in the car at the time.

George L. Wilgus, 25, of Bangor escaped injury Friday night when his car plunged down an embankment along Rt. 165 about three miles south of Bangor in Lower Mount Bethel Twp.

State Police at Easton said Wilgus lost control while rounding a curve and crashed through a guard rail. The car was demolished, police said.

Trooper Michael Schoot is continuing the investigation. A Delaware Water Gap youth was injured slightly Friday night when his car slammed into a guard rail along a rural road in Smithfield Twp.

State Police at Stroudsburg said the boy, Floyd Storm, 18, received a bruised right leg.

Troopers said Storm pulled out of the Delaware Paper Mill Driveway continued across a road and struck the guard rail. They estimated damage to his car at $100. Storm will be charged with failing to stop for a stop sign, state police said.

Four Investigated
Stroudsburg borough police investigated four accidents over the weekend.

In the first accident a 13-year-old Stroudsburg youth was hurt in a car-bicycle mishap at Hintze's Laundromat at 124 N. 9th St., Stroudsburg Friday at 5:16 p.m.

The youth, Michael M. Phillips, of 830 Sarah St., came out of a driveway on ninth and brushed against the car driven by Robert S. Rinehart, 45, of 1070 Fritz Ave., Stroudsburg, police said.

Phillips was treated for injury to the left knee and released from the General Hospital of Monroe County.

He told police he did not see the car coming when he pulled out of the driveway. Rinehart reportedly slammed on his brakes and came to a complete stop when the boy brushed the car. Rinehart took the youth to the hospital.

A two-car crash was investigated in front of the Delaware Valley Transportation Co. at 213 N. 9th St., Stroudsburg, Saturday at 3:40 a.m.

Misses One, Hits Another
According to police, a car driven by Gilbert J. Murray, 29, of Stroudsburg, RD 3, was traveling north on Ninth Street when he observed a car backing across the street.

Murray told police he swerved to avoid colliding with the car and his vehicle struck a parked panel truck which was in front of the Transportation Co. The truck is owned by Jet Messinger Inc. of Melochan, N.J.

The left side of Murray's vehicle was damaged, police said. Also the entire left side of the truck was damaged. The car which was backing across the street, driven by Paul Huff of 523 Sarah St., Stroudsburg was not damaged, police said.

Also, a one car crash was investigated at 505 Sarah St., Stroudsburg Saturday at 1:40 a.m.

Marguerite Hawk, 41, of Delaware Water Gap, was traveling south on 5th St. and turned onto Sarah when she lost control and hit a tree, police said. She suffered cuts, a bruised cheek and knee.

TO TRY AGAIN—Linda Maugeri, left, and Diane Walker, both runners-up in last year's Poconos' Junior Miss Pageant, will be contestants for the same title this year on Oct. 3. The 1965 pageant is being run for the benefit of the Burnley Workshop. The contest is open to young girls between the ages of 16 and 19 and who live in Monroe, Wayne, Pike, Carbon and Lackawanna counties. Application blanks can be obtained by writing to Poconos' Junior Miss Pageant in Stroudsburg. All entries must be received by Mrs. Robert Miller, executive director, by Sept. 1.

Pageant's Runners-Up Vie Oct. 3 For Junior Miss Title

STROUDSBURG — Two young ladies who danced their way to runners-up roles in last year's Junior Miss Pageant are seeking the 1965 crown Saturday, Oct. 3, when the third annual Poconos' Junior Miss Pageant will be staged in the auditorium of East Stroudsburg High School.

Linda Maugeri, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James V. Maugeri, and Diane Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Walker, will vie for the crown and the right to compete in Pennsylvania's Junior Miss contest which is staged annually by the Reading (Pa.) Jaycees.

Both contestants are residents of Stroudsburg and are seniors at Stroud Union High School.

The local pageant is sponsored by the newly founded Burnley Sheltered Workshop for Handicapped, headed by Dr. James Reed, a member of the East Stroudsburg State College faculty.

A special cash scholarship award will go to the winner of the Poconos' Junior Miss title which will be used to further her education. She will also receive a formal white gown from A. B. Wyckoff to wear in state competition in November.

The state winner will compete in America's Junior Miss Pageant at Mobile, Alabama, next March and she will be awarded a four-year scholarship by Gov. William Scranton plus a $1,000 cash scholarship donated by Coca Cola Bottlers of Pennsylvania.

Contestants in the Junior Miss Pageant are high school seniors whose ages before March 15, 1965 must not be under 16 nor over 19. Judging will be done on a point system with 50 per cent of votes allocated towards mental alertness, poise and personality; 20 per cent talent; 15 per cent appearance in evening gown, and 15 per cent appearance in sportswear.

Application blanks are being sent to high schools in Monroe, Wayne, Pike, Carbon and Lackawanna counties, or may be obtained by writing to POCONOS' JUNIOR MISS PAGEANT, Stroudsburg. Entries must be received by Mrs. Robert Miller, executive director, by Sept. 1.

WHAT IF YOU HAVE TO START ALL OVER AT AGE 42?

When machinery replaces men—when new methods work more efficiently—that's progress. But opportunity for you is part of progress, too. There will be new jobs—new chances to earn a living. And a better one at that.

Suppose you have many years of experience on a job you like. But—next month or next year—the plant closes down. Or a new machine takes your place. What happens to you?

You won't get tomorrow's jobs with yesterday's skills

These new opportunities will demand something different. New skills. You'll want to re-train—learn these new skills and abilities in order to fill one of the better-paying jobs that progress brings.

It takes a little time and effort to re-train. Mostly, it takes the will to make a better future for yourself. Start by talking to the local office of your state employment service.

Train now for tomorrow's jobs

Register To Vote

From now until September 11, the familiar pleas for voter registration will be heard in this county.

In the past, there have always been those hold-outs, who for some reason, don't take the few minutes necessary to register.

This county is making it easier this year, with outside registration scheduled for a number of places.

Today at the Mt. Pocono Borough Building, registrars will sit from 1 to 10 p.m.; and on August 21 at the Barrett Elementary School from 1 to 10 p.m.

Also, at the West End Fair on August 25 from 1 to 10 p.m. and on August 26 from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Special registration at the courthouse will be from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on September 11 and 12, and on Saturday, September 12, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

You can always register any weekday from 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at the courthouse. We urge you to do it now. Don't wait until the last minute.

Don't think your vote doesn't count. For every vote uncast, votes cast grow in influence. If the votes that are growing in influence are cast by persons with political philosophies different from yours, you may find the political atmosphere uncomfortable after the election.

Plato hit the nail squarely about 24 centuries ago:

"The punishment of wise men who refuse to take part in the affairs of government is to live under the government of unwise men."

Unlike the weather, you can do something about the political climate. The strength of this country is built on the idea that the people will choose the best men.

By sitting home on election day, you fail in your role as a citizen of the United States.

President Kennedy eloquently said, "Ask not what your country can do for you, but what you can do for your country."

The most important thing you can do for your country is to elect as its leaders the best men possible.

You can do this through your vote. You can vote only if you register now.

Comment Of The Day

"If anything stands higher than the press in its importance as a defender of our freedom and our free institutions, it is our school system."

"Indeed I am not sure that such a distinction should be made between these two indispensable factors in a self-governing society."

"On the personal side, the great bulk of the press has treated me considerately, even generously. Consequently I feel it is only those who have some feeling of guilt who have tried to interpret my words as strictures against the bulk of press personnel."

TV Debate Urged

By Roscoe Drummond

WASHINGTON — If Congress fails to renew the law permitting the campaign TV debates, it will rob the Presidential campaign of one of its most animating and useful forces.

The necessary legislation has already been approved by the Senate. It has been approved by the House. It has been approved by the Senate-House conference committee after ironing out minor differences in the two versions.

Now the bill is being coyly and conveniently held back by the Democratic politicians for two totally irrelevant and invalid reasons.

1—They think they are "protecting" President Johnson from having to decide publicly — and to admit publicly — whether he wants to engage in any TV encounter with Sen. Goldwater.

Some figure it would be a political mistake for the President to give away "his" audience to his opponent.

The Democratic politicians figure that if they can keep Congress from acting — and time is rapidly running out — then Mr. Johnson will not have to take on himself the onus of saying no.

2—Some honestly think it is risky and against the national interest for an incumbent President to engage in off-the-cuff campaign debate which might produce indiscretions felt around the world.

The first argument is political favoritism. Why shouldn't Congress treat both candidates alike, let each decide for himself? Sen. Goldwater has said he is "ready and willing." Why should President Johnson be given the screen of Congressional inaction behind which to hide his position? Not that he has asked for it, but so far the Democratic politicians are thrusting it at him — and maybe they know what they are doing. All I am saying is that Congress should provide the opportunity for the debates and the two nominees should have the responsibility to make their own decisions.

What about the second argument, that it is unwise for a President to engage in give-and-take debate? In the first place, Sen. Goldwater has made it easy for Mr. Johnson to decide not to debate with him if that is his wish. Before his nomination the Senator said he thought an incumbent President ought not to take this kind of risk. Isn't this up to the President to decide, not to have someone else decide it for him?

There are two special services to voters from these joint TV encounters:

They bring the differing views of the two candidates into immediate focus so that it is far easier for the people to examine and choose between them.

They tend to promote among partisans — and this point is made by a special committee from the American Political Science Association — "an awareness of the candidates and positions of the other party."

It would take Congress about five minutes to complete its renewal of the 1960 TV legislation. I can't think of time better spent for a better purpose than to help the nation choose the next President.

The Allen-Scott Report

Ship Flag Flying?

WASHINGTON — Congressional authorities are trying to get at the bottom of an amazing report that the destroyers patrolling the Gulf of Tonkin in international waters had orders NOT to fly the U. S. flag.

Source of this extraordinary information is a qualified military official in a position to know about it.

According to this source, the destroyers reportedly did not fly the flag before, during and after the attack by the North Viet Nam PT boats. This was in compliance with orders from "higher authority."

While positive that such an order was issued, the source had no explanation for it.

He was as baffled as the astounded members of Congress who have been told about the matter. In the discreet inquiries now underway, their attention has been called to the following provision in Navy Regulations:

—Chapter 21, Section 8, Article 2163, Paragraph 4: "During battle the flag will be displayed, unless otherwise directed by the senior officer present."

In this alleged instance, the senior officer was the commander of the destroyers — who patiently was complying with orders from higher authority, which presumably means Washington.

BITING THE HAND — These congressional authorities also have been informed that a "large number" of Viet Nam's PT boat fleet came from Egyptian dictator Gamal Nasser.

As explained to the lawmakers, Nasser obtained these boats from Russia, which has distributed hundreds of them to satellites and other countries throughout the world. When a later model, equipped with missiles as well as torpedoes, became available, Nasser unloaded the older boats on North Viet Nam in a barter deal.

Since 1953, the Egyptian ruler has obtained $892.8 million in various forms of U.S. aid. Of this huge total, approximately two-thirds — $575 million — has been extended by the Kennedy and Johnson administrations.

Nasser also has been granted a number of long-term low-interest loans amounting to around $100 million.

They include $30 million for a power plant in Cairo, one of whose functions is to supply power for his trouble-stirring and hate-spewing radio station, $34.5 million for diesel locomotives; $17 million for facilities to handle and store the large supplies of grain he is getting from the U.S. virtually for nothing; $7 million for so-called industrial bank; and $6 million for a baggage plant.

In June, the International Monetary Fund suddenly handed Nasser a $40 million loan at one per cent interest.

Senator Joseph Clark, D-Pa., chairman of the International Finance Subcommittee, proposed to investigate this, but was blocked by Senator J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., head of the Foreign Relations Committee, who claimed jurisdiction over the matter. That ended it, because Fulbright did nothing.

Clark charged the loan was rushed through the Monetary Fund at State Department insistence even though it meant "breaking the long-established rule that a nation can draw upon its borrowing quota only if it adopts austere internal financial policies to strengthen its currency." Also that this was done "even though it meant alienating our allies in Europe and in Latin America against which the fund's rule has been strictly enforced."

According to Clark, the Treasury Department sharply objected to the loan, but was "overruled by the Senate Department in pursuance of its policy of constantly appeasing Nasser."

As a result of the Egyptian dictator's costly military intervention in Yemen — estimated at $500,000 a day — his foreign currency reserves sank to a low of $15 million from $12 million less than a year ago. In 1957 his hard currency reserves totaled $277 million.

The extraordinary IMF loan obviously was for the purpose of bailing Nasser out of a grave financial crisis.

Dear Abby

Here Are Some Words Of Wisdom

By Abby Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband told me about a silly dream he had last week. He dreamed that this lot of ours came to our house with no clothes on.

She just walked in naked and sat down in the parlor. I was upstairs at the time. She told me that she had told her to come over with no clothes on.

My husband came running upstairs and said to me, "Why did you tell her to come here naked?" And that was the end of the dream.

My husband thought this was funny. But the more I thought about it, the less funny I thought it was.

Why should my husband be dreaming about another woman with no clothes on?

I discussed it with a friend of mine who is known for her good sense and she said I shouldn't worry because if my husband had had any out-of-the-way thoughts about this woman he never would have told me the dream. I remain—

UNCONVINCED

DEAR UNCONVINCED: Your friend is wise. Believe her.

DEAR ABBY: I have been going with Jerome for three years. I date others, but Jerome is the man I want to marry.

He says he loves me, but he only proposes to me when he is out with the boys and has had a few drinks. Then he calls me up in the middle of the night and asks me to marry him.

He doesn't drink at all when he's with me. How can I get him to ask me to marry him when he is sober?

WANTS JEROME

DEAR WANTS: You probably can't. And even if you could, he sounds like the type who'd have to get half-plastered before he could get the nerve to go through with it. Marriage must be lived in the cold, clear, sober light of reality. Promises that come out of bottles are usually the first to go down the drain. Scratch Jerome.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were intrigued with your suggestion on how to keep a neighbor's chickens out of one's yard.

My husband wants to know if you have any suggestions on how to keep our neighbor's ducks from fouling up our horses' watering trough.

The ducks come over and swim in it, leaving feathers and other dirty matter behind so that the trough has to be emptied and cleaned out every day. Is there a solution to this problem?

GENESEE, IDAHO

DEAR GEN: Horse sense tells me it's duck soup!

DEAR ABBY: Apropos the letter from the college boy who condemned his father for not being a "good" father: I am willing to bet that if you were to ask one hundred successful, reasonably well-adjusted family men if their fathers ever played ball with them, took them on trips, or sat down and talked "man-to-man" with them, ninety-five would have to say no.

"ONE OF THE 95"

CONFIDENTIAL TO A SCORE OF CLERGYMEN AND MANY MORE LAYMEN: When 11-year-old Debbie wrote to ask why, since there was a Mother's Day and a Father's Day, there was no Children's Day, I replied: "There is. And it falls on each child's birthday."

I stand corrected. There is indeed an official Children's Day. And it falls on the second Sunday in June! Twenty swats with a rolled-up calendar for Abby.

Government Gift

By George Dixon

WASHINGTON — The title for this should be "The strange story of the Columbia University Navy under two flags."

The U. S. Government recently made a gift to Columbia U. of a spanking new oceanography vessel. After its shakedown cruise to shake up the ocean depths, the oceanography ship put into the nearest Navy dock for service. To the navy chagrin, the eminent geophysicists and marine biologists on board, service was peremptorily refused.

The ocean-going (and diving) savants were so outraged it was all they could do to keep from throwing their bathythermographs and fathometers at the service refusers. Finally the sea scientists sailed away in a low dudgeon, which is the oceanography counterpart of a high dudgeon.

Later they reported the inhospitality to the government, possibly expecting it to declare war on the service recalcitrants. But the government did not even order limited reprisals. It advised Columbia University to resolve any differences it might have with organized labor.

This brought the whole story out. It revealed that the Columbia Navy has not one, but two, oceanography vessels, both gifts from the government.

The first gift was an old re-reconditioned ship, Columbia promptly put it under Panamanian registry and flew from it the Panamanian flag. Why? It didn't care to deal with the AFL-CIO Seafarers Union.

The brand new ship made its maiden voyage under the American flag, but without a Seafarers Union crew. That's why it was refused service.

After digesting the government's advice, Columbia traded in its own Columbia crew for an union crew.

Immediately after President Johnson announced elimination from the Vice Presidential "open" of practically everybody except men from mars and Minnesota, the junior Senator from one of those two places sauntered into the Senate Democratic cloakroom.

The sight of Senator Eugene J. McCarthy prompted another Deep Northern Senator to get up and do a startling imitation of President Johnson. In a Texas drawl you could cut with a knife, he mimicked: "What you-all don't realize is how us Texans get rid of those folks. Ouhah folks in oth-ah places have brandin's, but us Texans have cullin's."

"We done our full cullin' today."

The other night at a party I got talking to one of the most interesting ladies in our town, the Begum Anwar Ahmed, wife of the ambassador from Pakistan. She was raised in heavily-veiled purdah. Now she is one of the most-active female politicians of her homeland.

This night, however, she said she didn't want to talk politics she'd rather discuss gardening.

The Begum revealed she was an ardent tulip fan. I said that Holland certainly had given a great floral gift to the world.

"Not Holland," said the Begum. "Turkey."

I would have given her an argument, except that I know she knows so much more than I do. So I contented myself with asking her why the Dutch not the Turks, were getting all the tulip credit.

She said that a Turkish ambassador, whose name eluded her for the moment, introduced a tulip bulb into Holland in 1581.

"This led to a tulip craze in the Low Countries," she recounted. "Between 1634 and 1637 it became so wild that a single bulb was sold for the equivalent of $5,200 in U.S. money today. Ownership of one bulb, at times even nonexistent, was often divided into shares. How do you think the Dutch felt about this?"

"It beats the Dutch," I said.

Good Sports Swap Info

Blend one conversation of Charley Swift with words from M. Stiles Baldwin and you've got a pretty fair sports library at one sitting.

The other day Charley came to town. The WFIL-TV sportscaster who salutes a weekend sports program with "Meet The Phillies" interviews got cornered in the Penn-Stroud's Grill. It wasn't a put-up-your-hands-and-fight affair, but a convective that forced three sports enthusiasts to try and outdo each other.

Swift, the Stroud Union High graduate of not many years ago, was kept busy tossing statistics. In side-dope and lesser lights off the skulls of yours truly and Baldwin. Marty held his own, though, and picked up the ball whenever Swift came up for air.

Charley loves the Phillies like no other speller of the airwaves. If the Phillies lose out in their pennant chase, Swift will lead the wake in Philadelphia.

This fellow who was rated the best broadcaster in the State of Florida a year ago can't see Gene Mauch's club finishing anywhere but first place. His reason is simple. "The Phils are unselfish," he says, giving all credit to Mauch for the term.

"Sure they have a few stars like Callison (Johnny) and Allen (Richie). But if Johnny and Richie falter, there is always someone who will come along and pick the club up," Charley said.

"Another big point in their favor is the fellow who is out of the lineup roots just as hard for his replacement, even though the bench warmer would like to be in there," he pointed out.

Swift is a Mauch roofer from a way back. "I said he was the best manager in baseball even when the club was in the midst of that 23-game losing streak in 1961."

Swift emphasized what he thinks was Mauch's hardest chore. "His job was to make the Phils believe in themselves. No longer do they look in awe at Willie Mays, Don Drysdale and other established players. Now they go on the field feeling they can beat any team."

Baldwin, the Poconos personal good-will ambassador to the athletic world, probed Charley with a few questions. However, Charley threw back strikes with the confidence of a Jim Bunning who Swift calls, "the professionals' professional ballplayer."

It will be a sad day indeed if the Phils stumble the next month and a half. Life though will go on for Swift who is gaining a better reputation with each passing all-star.

No matter the outcome, Swift can always come back to the Poconos and hear from M. Stiles what's happening in the world of sports. Not that Charley needs a refresher but it is simply good for the area to have a first-class TV personality among its honored citizens every so often.

Speaking Of Your Health:

Advances In Heart Therapy

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Heart-lung machines save a few thousands of lives all over the world.

Is X-ray helpful in the diagnosis of heart conditions?

Many of these machines are so huge, so intricate and so complex that they require the combined talents of physicians, surgeons, chemists, physiologists and engineers to insure peak performance.

An ingenious physician, Dr. William Rashkead, of the Children's Hospital in Philadelphia, Pa., recently designed a more compact and pumpless lung machine that has already been used to save the lives of children with severe respiratory distress.

This simpler, smaller apparatus reduces to a minimum the problems of servicing and operating the life-saving device.

Holds Great Promise

The "compact lung" holds a great promise for help to newborn infants, and even to adults.

It is an endless source of hope to realize that physicians and scientists never rest in their search for new and better ways to preserve our health.

Is open heart surgery usually successful?

Mr. R. L. B., Oklahoma

It most certainly is — in thousands and thousands of cases.

Fantastic Progress

Recent strides in heart surgery have been so fantastic that they almost resemble science fiction. Children born with heart defects, who might have died prematurely, adults with rheumatic heart disease, who might have been chronic invalids, are alive and healthy today as a result of new and brilliant surgical techniques.

Is X-ray helpful in the diagnosis of heart conditions?

Mr. L. C., Ohio

Angiography (X-ray study of the blood vessels and the inner chambers of the heart) is often used in diagnosing certain conditions. Special safe dyes can outline the structure of the heart so that it can be clearly studied by X-ray.

Replacing Heart Valves

Can defective heart valves be replaced?

Mrs. K. V., Arizona

Yes. An intricate surgical technique is being used to remove defective or diseased valves and to replace them with real or even plastic heart valves.

There is now a program of "banking" human heart valves for future use, similar to the way blood is banked for subsequent transfusions.

Term Defined

What is a rheumatic heart?

Mr. G. T. Q., Wisconsin

This term describes a heart condition that sometimes follows episodes of rheumatic fever.

If the valves of a rheumatic heart become stenosed (narrowed), special surgery can often miraculously return the heart and the patient to good health.

These columns are designed to relieve your fears about health through a better understanding of your mind and body. All the hopeful new advances in medicine reported here are known to doctors everywhere.

CAS Works With Others To Help Unwed Mothers

This is the first in a series of 13 articles on the Community Chest in Monroe County, and the 12 agencies which receive support from the unified drive. Appearing each Monday and Thursday in the Daily Record, the series was written by Charles McNeil, Daily Record reporter.

STROUDSBURG — What does a local high school girl do when she makes the discovery that in discretion has led to pregnancy?

According to Charles Jones, executive secretary of Children's Aid and Family Service Society of Monroe County, a Community Chest agency, the girl's first reaction is usually one of fear. To whom can she go for help?

Jones said many girls in this situation go to the Salvation Army, which operates a home for unwed mothers in Philadelphia.

When the girl visits Capt. Worthly at the Army's citadel, he refers her to Children's Aid. Jones said, for counseling while she waits to enter the home.

Talk To Girl
Jones and his staff of two case workers talk to the girl, and try to help her through the difficult period of telling her parents and getting ready to leave.

After the child is born, if the girl decides to let it out for adoption, a court hearing is held, and the girl signs relinquishment papers, Jones said.

He indicated there is a trend for unwed mothers to keep their children, rather than let them go.

With papers signed, the child is placed in the custody of Children's Aid, Jones continued. The society, through its affiliation with Children's Aid Society of Pennsylvania and its regional adoption plan, secures reports on the child and prospective foster parents. When parents are chosen, Jones said, they are never from the same area as the child's mother.

In addition to adoption placement, Children's Aid, Jones added, provides foster home placement, institutional placement and protective care for neglected children.

The private agency also does family counseling. He said, "Common problems are personal adjustment, emotional disturbance, child guidance and marital discord." Finally, Jones frequently gets requests from out-of-town agencies for information on families or children here.

Staff of Five
The Monroe County organization is financed by payment for services performed for the county, and by Community Chest donations, he said. It has a staff of five now.

Jones, himself, has a master's degree in social work, and has been head of the agency since 1959. Prior to coming to Stroudsburg, Jones was director of a children's home in Ogdenburg, N. Y.

Case workers on his staff are Mrs. A. G. Gearhart, a veteran of 15 years with the agency, and Mrs. John Planchok, who has worked here for two years. The office at 710 Sarah St. also has two secretaries.

Jones said he has advertised for an additional case worker, in order to expand the organization's family counseling service.

Last year, Jones said, 66 children were placed in foster homes by his agency. Of these, 9 are financed by the Community Chest at a basic cost of $1.71 per day. The Chest also paid for counseling of 14 families out of a total of 41. Four unwed mothers also used the agency.

All in all 205 children from 69 families received help from the agency, 37 (18 per cent) being paid for by the Chest.

Jones said Children's Aid has a total budget of $78,467.02 for 1964-65. Of this amount, he is counting on $11,239.09 from this year's Community Chest fund appeal.

$46,025.25 Budget
The agency plans on spending $46,025.25 for direct care of neglected children, $2,340.00 of it from the Chest. The sum covers board, clothing, medicine, allowances, emergencies, and such things as remedial reading, camps, and so forth.

The remainder of the budget includes $27,110.80 for salaries for the six, four of whom work full-time at counseling; psychiatric fees, maintenance and administration.

For these services, the Chest pays 10 per cent of the budget for child care and 90 per cent for family counseling. The child care money from the Chest, Jones said, is mainly used for preadoptive care of infants.

Jones concluded that with the hiring of a full-time family case worker, and a successful Community Chest campaign to meet the cost, Children's Aid and Family Service Society of Monroe County will be able to do an even better job of helping residents of the county when they need it.

FIRE VICTIM—14-year-old LeRoy Bishop of East Stroudsburg is rushed aboard hospital ambulance after he was severely burned in a East Stroudsburg service station fire Saturday shortly after 8 p.m. The youth, with second degree burns over 90 per cent of his body, was listed in critical condition last night. Rooney: Record Wishes Of 15th Voters SAYLORS LAKE — Approximately 300 persons heard Congressman Fred B. Rooney declare Saturday afternoon at Saylors Lake that he was proud and privileged to serve the people of the 15th district in the House of Representatives. Rooney stated he believed his record of support for the administrations of Presidents Kennedy and Johnson reflected the wishes of the voters.

Speaking at an ox roast sponsored by the West End Democratic Association, Rooney pointed out that it is easy to criticize, but not so easy to propose good alternatives. "I believe," he said, "that since I was sent to Congress my record has been one of support for good policies, and that I have been of some service to this district. I will continue that record and that service."

Rooney and Monroe Rep. Van D. Yetter, Jr. of Marshalls Creek were introduced by Witold Tilwick, president of the West End Democratic Assn. Yetter, also a candidate for re-election, complimented the club on the large turnout.

Many of those present were entertained by a pig roast on a huge spit, with cooks serving hot meat directly to the on-lookers.

Other local officials present were Dist. Atty. James Marsh, Treasurer Warren Loney, Auditors Thomas Joyce and Joseph Vogt, Prothonotary Frank Smith, and Associate Judge Walter Heckman.

Boy, 14, Severely Burned Cleaning Tools With Gas

EAST STROUDSBURG — A 14-year-old East Stroudsburg youth was still in critical condition last night with second degree burns over 90 per cent of his body in the General Hospital of Monroe County.

The youth received the burns in a gasoline and cleaning fluid flash-fire at Seffass's Service Station at Washington and Courtland St. in East Stroudsburg.

LeRoy Bishop, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Bishop of 186 N. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg, suffered the burns in a fire Saturday shortly after 8 p.m.

According to East Stroudsburg police, Bishop was in the service station garage cleaning tools with a gasoline solution. He was accompanied by three other youths. Two of the youths reportedly questioned Bishop as to whether or not the cleaning fluid would burn. The boy struck a match and the gasoline flared up and spread fire throughout the garage.

Police later questioned the three youths. The definitely said Bishop struck the match which caused the flare-up.

Theodore Neyhart, 18, of Stroudsburg was working in the gas station at the time of the fire. He reportedly helped get three of the youths outside and tried to enter the garage to get Bishop, but the intense heat kept him out.

East Stroudsburg Acme Hose Co. Number One responded to the alarm Saturday shortly after 8 p.m. and remained on the scene for three-quarters of an hour.

Seven Out Of 30 Doctors In Local Area Women

By Tom Wilson
Daily Record Reporter

EAST STROUDSBURG — Nearly one fourth of the doctors serving the Stroudsburg-East Stroudsburg area are women. There are seven female doctors out of approximately 30 area physicians.

This was one of many interesting observations made at a recent interview of two locally prominent women doctors, Dr. Mary T. Hunsicker and Dr. Charlotte B. Jordan, at their offices in the Pocono Medical Center in East Stroudsburg.

Dr. Hunsicker and Dr. Jordan are dermatologists. The other five local women doctors are Dr. Margaret D. Evermon of East Stroudsburg, who is a psychiatrist; Dr. Albert M. Finch of Stroudsburg, general practitioner; Dr. Nina M. Price of East Stroudsburg, general practitioner; Dr. Ann Snyder of Saylorsburg, a general practitioner; and Dr. Veronica Conker of East Stroudsburg, who is a pathologist at the Monroe County General Hospital.

Area Girls Studying
There are also three area girls studying to be doctors. They are Jeanette Munson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred W. Munson of Stroudsburg who will be a sophomore at Temple Medical School in Philadelphia; Ann Shaffer, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Shaffer of Stroudsburg, who will be a senior at Temple Medical School; and Mary Beth Knepp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Knepp of Stroudsburg, who will be a senior at the Jefferson Medical School in Philadelphia.

Mary Beth was in the first class at the Jefferson Medical School to accept female students.

Dr. Hunsicker and Dr. Jordan agreed that it was no harder for a woman to become a doctor than for a man. However, they said it is twice as hard for a woman to get into medical school.

Even though there is a lot of discrimination in medical school against women, once a woman gains admittance to any medical school she is treated as an equal, according to the local physicians.

The interesting fact was noted that Pennsylvania has the only women's medical school in the world — Women's Medical College in Philadelphia.

Dr. Hunsicker said the main requirement for a woman doctor is good health. "A woman must be extremely healthy both physically and mentally to enter the field of medicine," she said. She also stated a woman must love people and have a tremendous drive to become a doctor.

Dr. Jordan added, "Female physicians can be well rounded people. They can have a family, run the household and still be good doctors," she said.

Having a doctor for a mother hasn't hurt her children, she said. "For instance my three daughters are all going into some form of professional work," she reported.

Dr. Hunsicker said a woman doctor manages to compress her work, whether it be at home or in the office.

As proud that female doctors have a well rounded family life it was pointed out that Dr. Finch has five children. Dr. Jordan has four. Dr. Price has four. Dr. Hunsicker has two, and Dr. Evermon is expecting. Dr. Snyder is a newwed and Dr. Conker is engaged.

Stay In Medicine
The doctors said they have a higher percentage of women who have graduated from a school of medicine stay in that field than do men. As proof they cited a survey conducted by the University of Pennsylvania which proved 86 per cent of women doctors stay in medicine.

Asked whether men or women prefer women doctors, both ladies said the percentages are about the same as for male doctors. There is very little discrimination against women doctors they said.

Dr. Jordan said she believed there have been enough women prominent in medicine to make people accept female doctors.

However, she said, "One of my medical professors in college told me a woman must work twice as hard to get half as far as a man in medicine."

Dr. Hunsicker remarked that even with the heavy work load of women doctors, they are usually active in community work. Both doctors said they were presently engaged in club work.

Dr. Hunsicker said, "Women doctors don't have many leisurely evenings to just relax and do nothing."

Free Time Limited

true," she said.

The doctors also agreed on another point of interest — husbands. They said it takes a special kind of man to stay married to a doctor. He must not feel his wife is competing with him, they said.

Dr. Jordan said "My husband wouldn't live with me if I didn't practice medicine. I have too much drive to just sit around the house."

The two doctors said they admired women doctors who are general practitioners. They said this is the hardest type of practice.

The interesting fact that Dr. Conkar is from Yugoslavia was brought up by Dr. Hunsicker.

Native of Yugoslavia
In contacting Dr. Conkar it was learned she came to the United States 11 years ago from Yugoslavia, where she was born.

She graduated from the University of Virginia school of medicine.

She said a woman only needs adequate intelligence and a willingness to work to become a doctor. She also felt there wasn't much discrimination against women doctors. She said, "I think it balances out. Some people won't go to a woman doctor and others insist on a woman doctor."

She said the hardest part of becoming a doctor was medical school. "Going to medical school is a full time job and most women aren't geared for it," she said.

But in summing up Dr. Conkar said she felt a woman doctor doesn't have any troubles just because she is a woman.

Youths Face Charges For Regina Entry

STROUDSBURG — Five area youths were arrested by State Police at Stroudsburg over the weekend and charged with burglary for breaking into and looting the blast stricken Regina Hotel on Rt. 209 in Middle Smithfield Twp. near Marshalls Creek. The hotel has been closed since June 26.

The youths range in age from 14 to 16 years. One of the boys was from Delaware Water Gap and the other three were from East Stroudsburg, State Police said yesterday.

The hotel is owned by Theodore Regina of Echo Lake who was injured in the dynamite blast of an explosive laden tractor-trailer on June 26.

According to State Police, the youths entered the building on Friday about 11:15 a.m. They are being detained in the juvenile detention quarters in the Monroe County Jail. They are scheduled for a hearing before Judge Fred W. Davis today.

Cy Barrett Says

Job Finding Strategy

By Cyrus Barrett, Jr.

DEAR CY:

The divorcee who asked you to steer her in the direction of a job has given me big ideas. Where can I find a job... and a husband? Don't tell me I should become an airline stewardess; my figure would never pass the test. (Some men don't think me overly attractive.) I am a very good secretary and want to remain one until marriage parts me from my career. Where can I find a job which can lead me to the altar?

GERT

DEAR GERT:

According to the last U.S. census, we have 100 men for every 97 women. As you know statistics like these don't produce the wedding march from Lochengrin for every working gal.

In your case, I would suggest you weight the odds heavily in your favor by hunting where single men tremendously outnumber women, and business is flourishing.

As there is a general shortage of competent secretaries, these are the two vital factors for bringing success to your situation. Avoid the District of Columbia like rat poison. D.C. would be the worst place for a girl of your description since (unlike any of the states) single women actually outnumber single men there.

New York State doesn't look too promising, either. It has 1,531,321 single males for 1,407,000 females. Industry is big in the Empire State but so is the cost of dating. I'd suggest you consider Alaska (30,755 single men to 9,236 women) or Hawaii (84,965 to 44,376). Just be sure to have adequate capital and a promise of a job before you shove off.

CY

DEAR CY:

Tell me honestly. Do you know of anyone benefiting from taxpayers' money going into retraining through the Manpower Development and Retraining act? I mean an unemployed unskilled worker, not a politician.

DELANHANTY

DEAR DELANHANTY:

Three weeks ago, 27 men were graduated from a retraining course held under the auspices of the New York State employment department and the New York City board of education.

One 37-year-old, off-and-on laborer took up meat cutting as his new career and is now employed in a super market, making $80 per week, with opportunity for continuous employment.

Practically all graduates were unskilled workers before taking the four-month course in meat cutting. Instruction is given only in fields for which surveys prove there is a shortage of trained workers. About 50 to 70 per cent of those graduating from such courses obtain employment. Careful screening of school applicants will undoubtedly increase the job-getting figure.

Goldwater Using Kennedy's 'Defense Gap' Argument

By William B. Dickinson, Jr.
Editorial Research Reports
WASHINGTON — "During the presidential campaign of 1960 the absurd charge was made by Mr. Kennedy and others that America had become — or was in danger of becoming — a second-rate military power."

"Any comparison of over-all American strength with over-all Soviet strength reveals that the U.S. was not only superior, but so superior both in present weapons and in the development of new ones that our advantage promises to be a permanent part of the U.S.-Soviet relations for the foreseeable future," — Barry M. Goldwater, Why Not Victory? (1962).

"Under our present defense leadership, with its utter disregard for new weapons, our deliverable nuclear capacity may be cut down by 90 per cent in the next decade," — Barry M. Goldwater, speech to the National Association of Counties, Washington, D.C., Aug. 10, 1964.

More heat than light is likely to come from the election-year debate over defense policies of the Johnson administration. On both sides the temptation is great to make self-serving estimates of U.S. military capabilities.

In a realm where public understanding is obscured by a curtain of secrecy, the electorate will find great difficulty in separating truth from fiction.

Credibility of the defense issue in political campaigns has been undermined by memories of its abuse in 1960.

The Democrats alleged that the Soviet Union could use its reported capability to build up a commanding battery of operational intercontinental ballistic missiles by the early 1960s, while the U.S. program was geared to a far slower pace.

Sen. Stuart Symington (D Mo.) even warned of an approaching 3-to-1 gap in operational ICBMs.

President Eisenhower called such accusations "despicable." But his assurances that the nation's defense was "not only strong, it is awesome" had to compete with the statements of the Democratic opposition and pronouncements from Pentagon brass as well.

"The trend of relative military strength is against us," former Army Chief of Staff Maxwell Taylor declared. Gen. Thomas S. Power, head of the Strategic Air Command, argued for a costly around-the-clock airborne alert to offset Soviet missiles.

Demos Parley Secretarial Work Handled By 3 Cuties

By Joy Miller
AP Women's Editor

To do secretarial chores for three major convention committees the Democrats are drawing on the experience of an intellectually formidable feminine trio: a nationally known lawyer, a college instructor in political science, a chancery court official.

They are Mrs. Constance Baker Motley, civil rights attorney and first Negro woman to be elected to the New York State Senate; Dr. Mildred Otenssek, who teaches at Notre Dame College in Baltimore; Mrs. Ruth Russell, onetime Business Woman of the year in Gallatin, Tenn., and a deputy court clerk.

New To Politics

Mrs. Motley, a hands-on, quiet-spoken woman of 42, has been a lawyer for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) for 18 years. She led the legal fight to get James Meredith into the University of Mississippi.

"I'm new to politics really," she says.

Before January of this year her political role had been that of voter. Then she won a special election as state senator and became not only the first woman of her race but of the Democratic Party to win a seat in the state senate.

In the senate she was an unusually active freshman, introducing 25 bills and speaking twice on the floor. By now imbued with the well-known political fever, she plans to run for re-election this fall.

Mrs. Motley's husband, Joel, an insurance and real estate agent, is proud of his wife's activities and keeps a scrapbook on her.

"That means that we have stacks of papers that never get clipped," she laughs.

Her son, Joel Jr., 11, will get out of an upstate New York camp in time to come to the convention she says.

Mrs. Motley, who was born in New Haven, Conn., one of 12 children, attended Columbia University Law School in New York and started with the NAACP as a law clerk. Says a colleague: "If a case is important, tough, one that requires a major undertaking, then Connie gets it."

Women Active

Dr. Mildred Otenssek, who will be secretary of the Committee on Credentials, has been a national committeewoman from Maryland for eight years. She served on the convention site committee, which selected Atlantic City. "I'll let you know if we did the right thing," she jibes.

In Baltimore, Dr. Otenssek, who got her Ph.D. in political economy, teaches both economics and political science. "It is my 25th year of teaching," she admits.

For 20 years she has been active in Democratic Party work and she finds that "women are a more important force than ever. Both parties realize that today, and both parties will make a pitch for the women's vote."

Mrs. Ruth Russell, 5 foot 4, with gray-green eyes and hair she describes as "practically gray," is secretary of the Committee on Resolutions and Platform.

Her job, as she sees it, is to call the roll of committee and help the chairman any way she can.

"I was court reporter here in Summer County and in an adjoining county for a long time," she says. "It might come in handy. But it will be so exciting. If I'm called on to take notes I hope I won't get so interested I forget to take it all down."

Roger Smith Baptized At Mount Eaton

Stroudsburg — Roger Lee Smith, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Smith received the sacrament of holy baptism at the Mount Eaton Church worship service on Sunday morning. Rev. Adam Bohner performed the rites with Miss Eileen Smith and Russell Padgett as sponsors.

The pastor also presented the new Bible, purchased by the Mount Eaton Church Council, urging members to dedicate themselves to the Bible. Altar flowers were presented in memory of Kenneth Arnold by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Arnold.

Margaret Hopper Weds In Kingdom Hall, Bangor

Bangor — Miss Margaret Joan Hopper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hopper of Brodheadsville, was married to Elwood Lawrence Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Miller of Sinking Springs, RD. 1, on Aug. 15 at 3 p.m. at the Jehovah's Witnesses Kingdom Hall in Bangor.

Carl Howell officiated with Mrs. Alma Howell of Stroudsburg serving as pianist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a dress of imported lace over organza with nylon draped over the lace. It was fashioned with a Sabrina neckline outlined with iridescent. She wore a crown of orange blossoms to hold her veil of silk illusion and carried a cascade bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids and pink rosebuds with lily of the valley.

Mrs. Carl Truitt of Stroudsburg as matron of honor wore a dress of sheer yellow nylon over taffeta with a three-tiered bow of sheer nylon holding her shoulder length veil of tulle. She carried a colonial bouquet of white pompons with rosebuds the color of the dress.

The bridesmaids, Alice Hopper of Brodheadsville, sister of the bride; Mrs. Fran Miller of Reading, sister-in-law of the bridegroom; and Lorraine Repsher of Bangor wore mint green dresses in the same style with matching headpieces and carried colonial bouquets of white pompons with green roses. The dresses were made by Ruby Montag of Pottsville. Kenneth Rodgers of Leola was best man. Ushers were Ralph and Ray Miller, brothers of the

What Makes A Woman A "Typical" Worker?

By Roberta Roesch

What kind of a picture do you dream up of the typical working woman?

Is it that wife who's getting ahead in an all-out glamour job while you stay at home and pick up the house from the shambles the kids make each day? Or is it that single girl down the block who spends every cent on her back?

The Daily Plodder?

On the other hand, is it the girl — or the one who calls herself "girl" — who plods to a deadly routine job as she has for the past 30 years?

Is it the woman with a brief case or the one with a paper bag lunch? And is she involved with a full-time job or only with part-time work?

The answers that draw the picture are available today in facts we currently have on our desk from the U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Statistics. Here's the authentic picture.

Forty-One Is Typical

The typical working woman, according to this report, is likely to be about 41 with a husband and growing family. By present count, the proportion of women over 45 in the labor force has more than doubled since 1920.

In 1963, for example, for every girl of 20 to 24 who worked there were two women of 35 to 44 who worked and two more of 45 to 54.

One Out Of Three Among married women, one out of three is now working, though many of them, however, are working only part-time.

The typical woman working today is better educated than her mother, the report goes on to say, and every indication shows that the degree to which she is better educated now has a definite impact on the likelihood that she will find paid employment.

For example, one Bureau of Statistics report shows that 57 percent of all women with college degrees in 1962 were working in contrast with 41 percent of women with a high school diploma and 28 percent of those with only an elementary school education.

Finally, the jobs held by today's women are as varied as the business world itself. As just a few examples, the 1960 Census recorded 431 women geologists and physicists and 18,632 women bus drivers.

Clerical Concentration But the largest concentration of female job-holders is in the clerical field. Currently more than half the women now working are found in the white-collar occupations with a full third in the clerical worker category.

Aside from this, one out of every six women workers is classified in the blue collar category with the overwhelming proportion of them employed in the nation's factories. Employment in firms that deal in service takes a quarter of all women now working.

Pocono Miss--Little And Junior-to Be Chosen At Two Pageants in October

Two local contests, the "Little Miss Pocono" and "Pocono's Junior Miss Pageants" are scheduled in the auditorium of East Stroudsburg High School Friday and Saturday, Oct. 2 and 3, respectively.

Proceeds from both events will benefit Burnley Sheltered Work Shop for Handicapped and Dr. James Reed of the FSSC faculty is serving as Chairman for these fund raising projects. Mrs. Robert A. Miller, founder of the Pocono Pageants, will again serve as director.

Contestants for the "Little Miss Pocono" Pageant must be girls five to ten years of age. Junior Miss entrants must be high school seniors, graduating next June and ages should not be under sixteen nor over nineteen prior to March 1965.

All entrants must be able to perform in a three-minute or less routine talent, or present a three-minute talk. Talent may be singing, dancing, playing musical instruments, drama, painting, drawing, or any of the fine arts.

Both groups will be judged on appearance in party dress or long evening gown. The Juniors will be judged on scholastic achievement and a cash scholarship will be awarded the winner of the Junior Miss event.

In both contest, a "Miss Personality" will be chosen by fellow-contestants, making this one of the highest honors bestowed on a contestant. The winners in this category both receive special trophies.

"Little Miss Pocono" will be an honored guest at the Saturday night crowning of the Junior Miss who will be seeking Pennsylvania's Junior Miss title at Thanksgiving time at Reading. Governor William Scranton will award a four-year scholarship to the state winner, and she will also be the recipient of a $1,000 cash scholarship, in addition to the all-expense-paid trip to Mobile, Alabama, next Spring where America's Junior Miss is chosen.

Deadline for entry in the two contests is September 1st and inquiries may be mailed to 906 Main Street, Stroudsburg.

"BROTHERHOOD", a ring featuring an interlocking design, the pink pearls of Pakistan entwined with garnets from the Western World.

Cardinals Viewed As Pro Football Threat

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) — On the theory that the St. Louis Cardinals matured in the heat of the rousing four-club race in 1963, many pro football observers are tabbing Wally Lemm's club for the Eastern championship in the National Football League this season.

The Cards came close last year although they finished third. With three games to go they were locked in a three-way tie for first with New York and Cleveland. Only a last game defeat by Dallas cost them a piece of second place. Their 9-5 record was the team's best since 1948.

Need Experience

"When you get in contention you are hurt if you don't have experience," said Lemm at the training camp at Lake Forest College where he used to coach. "None of our boys had played with a contender except Joe Childress and Jimmy Hill in 1956. I think we matured last year under real pressure. Now we know how it feels."

Fine Quarterback

Lemm is high on Charley Johnson, who has come to be recognized as one of the best—if not the best—young quarterbacks in the league.

Johnson, of course, is the key to the Cards' attack. Sonny Randle, the tricky split end, is one of the best receivers in the league and he knows all the moves. Bobby Joe Conrad, the flanker, led the NFL with 73 receptions last season.

Hopes For Help

Lemm counts on Gault and Childress to carry the running attack and hopes for help from Crow, Bob Paremore and Bill (Thunder) Thornton. Rookie Willie Crenshaw of Kansas State was to have been a defensive back but his play in the All-Star games convinced Lemm to give him a chance at offense.

Sees Improvement

Four of the defensive men were rookies last year—tackle

Sam Silas, end Don Brunum, linebacker Larry Stallings and safety Jerry Stovall, who also is the punter. Lemm expects all to improve. Veterans Joe Robb and Luke Owens join Silas and Brunum on the front four. Dale McInert, the defensive captain, is a top flight middle linebacker and Bill Koman is a standout at right linebacker.

Chisox Edge Bosox

BOSTON (AP) — Chicago parlayed a pair of misplayed triples and a wild pitch by Ed Connolly into a 2-1 victory over Boston Sunday and remained in the thick of the American League pennant race.

Chicago moved to within two games of Baltimore's leading Orioles, and finished the season series against the Red Sox with a 14-4 record.

Winner Joel Horlen had given up just four hits until he fired in the seventh and surrendered a second straight double to Frank Malzone. The right-hander still threw a third strike yast Eddie Bressoud before knuckleballer Hoyt Wilhelm finished the job.

Jim Landis got a triple to the right field corner in the third inning when Lee Thomas staggered and fell retrieving the ball. Landis put the White Sox ahead to stay when he scored on a wild pitch by Connolly.

Although no errors were charged, center fielder Carl Yastrzemski misjudged triples by Floyd Robinson in the first inning and Bill Skowron in the sixth. Robinson scored on a single by Skowron.

Senators Top Angels, 4-1 On Homers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Willie Kirkland's first home run for Washington and Ed Brinkman's third homer in four games helped the Senators to a 4-1 victory over the Los Angeles Angels Sunday.

Kirkland, acquired on waivers from Baltimore last week, hit his homer off Don Lee in the fifth inning. It was one of the longest ever hit in D.C. Stadium, landing in the mezzanine in right center, almost 400 feet from the plate and 50 feet high.
